A B O U T T H E I P E

The 2012 International Institute on Peace Education \(IPE\) is being organized in partnership with the National Peace Academy (home of the IPE secretariat) and the Global Campaign for Peace Education Japan \(GCPEJ\). For thirty years, the IPE has brought together peace educators from around the world to exchange experiences and learn with and from each other in an intensive short-term learning community. IPE 2012 participants from Japan and S.E. Asia are joined by representatives from other world regions. This residential learning exchange weaves together experiential and theoretical contributions of participants to illuminate diverse views, explore educational applications, and assess possibilities for practical steps toward a less violent and more just world security system.

EDUCATING FOR HUMAN SECURITY & SURVIVAL: EMERGENCIES IN ECOLOGY, ENERGY, ECONOMY

The theme of the 2012 IPE is “Educating for Human Security and Survival: Emergencies in Ecology, Energy, Economy.” In light of the concomitant crises of the March 2011 earthquake and tsunami, and the consequent nuclear meltdown, the IPE 2012 peace learning community is inquiring into human security possibilities for addressing current global emergencies in ecological imbalance, energy reconfiguring, and gapping economic inequities.
